Auditmetrics was established to get sales tax auditors, usually with AS or BS business administration background, to get quickly up to speed using statistical audits. Audits for big box stores involve millions of transactions. If there was push back the auditor had to face off against PhD statisticians from multi-national accounting firms. The key was the software generated Excel templates that document all required statistical verifications that meet IRS & AICPA standards.*

Auditmetrics was developed in the environment of commerce and government regulations. But that was only the beginning to a full-service expert system that includes financial forecasting and market research.
